Introduction:

On August 15th, 2022, a thought-provoking group discussion was held in the computer lab of our institute on the fascinating topic "Are entrepreneurs born or made?". The participants exhibited high levels of energy, interest, and enthusiasm, making the session a resounding success. The students were divided into three groups - one group in support of the topic, the second against it, and the third neutral. The primary objective of the discussion was to cultivate essential skills such as confidence, effective communication, leadership, and critical thinking among students and encourage them to think like entrepreneurs.

The discussion was highly engaging as each group member presented their views with conviction while attentively listening to others' ideas. The exchange of diverse perspectives and ideas made for a positive and enriching experience for all participants. This group discussion served as an excellent opportunity for students to express their opinions and hone their public speaking skills, ultimately building their self-confidence and bringing them into the mainstream. Overall, the event was a tremendous success, and the students left the computer lab with a renewed enthusiasm to pursue their entrepreneurial ambitions.
